WILLIAM JEWELL COLLEGE
LIBERTY, MISSOURI
1875

Dedication

To the beloved Traditions of William Jewell College; born of the enthusiasm and imagination of countless generations of students, young, wistful aspirants to the leadership of the widely varying worlds left to them by preceding ages, and the new worlds as yet undreamed of by the human mind; preserved by the love and loyalty with which present and future young men and women shall learn to cherish them and the "Hill" about which they center; living eternally, agelessly in the hearts of the gallant sons and faithful daughters of William Jewell in all the fields of endeavor where they may serve, we devotedly dedicate this, the thirty-ninth edition of the Tatler.

Foreword

Remember . . . all the gay things that have gone into 1944 at William Jewell . . . and all the serious ones, too . . . the "adopted" football team . . . the hayrides — radio parties — formals . . . the "bull sessions" . . . the intensive cramming for finals . . . the various presentations on the chapel stage . . . the spirit that is Jewell . . . all these, remember . . . the happiness and the sorrow . . . the memories strangely like those of generations before you on the "Hill" . . . and yet — different . . . more poignant — with the thought of the valiant hearts absent from the gatherings . . . yearning to become again a part of William Jewell . . . remembering wistfully the campus "with lilacs in her hair" . . . For your memories of this year, and for their dreams of what it has been like, the 1944 Tatler is presented as a record of the year on the campus, dedicated to their return.

THE CAMPUS

Jewell Hall

Standing majestically atop the hill to the east of Liberty, Jewell Hall maintains the vigil she has kept for almost one hundred years. She has seen thousands of young men and women, with hope high in their hearts, go out to meet the world and find their appointed places in it. From her halls of learning have stepped leaders in religion, education, science, and other fields wherein man has spent his energy and ingenuity. She has watched the upward growth of a nation through its young men who have fought for it in four bloody wars since 1849, through its young women who have served it gallantly as nurses and homemakers. Ever mindful of the effect of national and international events on all youth, she has taught those who have climbed her hill, of the world in which they live and for which many of them have died and will die.

Cherished in the memories of generations of students, Jewell Hall will continue to be loved by the youth of the land as she welcomes new groups of eager young people to her classrooms, and as she sends from her hill more of her sons to defend the ideals for which she stands.

Carnegie Library

One of the most important buildings on any college campus is the library. Since its founding William Jewell has realized the necessity for a good library. The beginning was, of course, small, but by 1905 there were more than 12,000 volumes besides about 700 pamphlets. These books were moved from one room to another, were housed at one time in a large room in the middle section of the first floor of Jewell Hall. Finally with the coming of Reverend Charles Haddon Spurgeon's private library, plans were made for a new building which was formally opened in 1908 providing not only housing space for the books which had been increasing in number every year, but also reading room space for the student body. At the present time some 45,000 volumes have found their places on its shelves.

Today the Carnegie Library stands on Jewell's campus, one of the most beautiful buildings on the hill, and probably one of the most frequented. Not only during the days, do the students find its spacious study room valuable, but also, in the evenings when it is open and on Saturday.

At the long tables in the library reading rooms have sat countless students, ambitious or otherwise, studying varying subjects, science, languages, psychology, history, or dreaming out of its windows over the white or green landscape about the future with all its fascination for young people. The worn books have been read and reread by numerous past student generations, who have gone out to live the inspiration which they found on the pages within these walls. New groups of students will continue to follow these, gaining from the library, at least some of the great store of knowledge it contains for those who are willing to find it.

The "J" Bench

The Class of '95, with the especial contribution of President Herget, presented the "J" Bench to the college in 1929 and it has since then taken its place in the traditional life on the Hill. It has become "taboo" for the freshmen during their orientation week, being sacredly reserved for the upper classmen. The memories of this bench are varied and mostly sweet. Here boy meets girl, light talk goes on, cokes are consumed, laughter and relaxation are the order of the day. During the winter months it shines forth in sparkling white as the symbol that it is, for the name of the beloved college on the Hill. During the fall and spring when warm breezes and flowers invite students to wander across the campus enjoying the "beauties of nature", however, the "J" serves a more useful purpose, adding more memories to the store it must now keep within its stones.

John Gano Memorial Chapel

Through the stained glass windows of Gano Chapel the sun makes patterns of color across the silent audience as the heads bow in prayer during the morning chapel service. The lift of the short inspirational period helps the students through an otherwise endless round of classes and study. It brings a welcome break as well as thought-provoking meditation.

Before and after the chapel program the students find an opportunity to chat, for since "chapel" is the only gathering which includes all the students, except those especially excused, it affords the only real chance for this fellowship.

Named for John Gano, an intimate friend of George Washington and a chaplain in his army, Gano Chapel has stood since 1926 as a symbol of the Christian education and fellowship which is the basis of William Jewell College. Here the students meet three times a week for a brief service in which the President usually delivers a message, but occasionally introduces well-known speakers from outside the college. Also during the year, various members of the faculty have been given an opportunity to speak to the student body and the Student Senate has presented several special programs.

On the stage of John Gano Chapel the William Jewell Players present their productions to an audience of students, townspeople, and this year, cadets. The stage is equipped with excellent lighting fixtures, dressing rooms, and other facilities needed for successful presentations. The Tatler Revue and the evening program on Work Day also made use of the chapel stage.

On the second floor of the chapel building are found the offices of the administration of the college opposite the entrance to the balcony which enables the auditorium to seat 1100 people. In the basement of the spacious building are the Co-op and the William Jewell Press.

As it stands looking south across the campus, the chapel symbolizes the Christian way of life which is the aim of the teaching program on the Hill.

Marston Hall

The home of the sciences, Marston Hall rises from the southern slope of the Hill with its well-equipped laboratories and spacious lecture rooms. Here since its construction in 1914, students have learned the mysteries of mathematics, biology, physics, chemistry; laws of the old scholars have been re-proved, theorems have been illustrated again and again. Since January, 1943, however, Marston Hall has been headquarters for the classes of the Naval Flight Preparatory School and all the classrooms have been given over to the V-5 cadets. Only the laboratories and a few offices have been retained by the college itself, while the science classes have been transferred to Jewell Hall for the duration of the present emergency.

When the construction of the building was pending, the 1910 Tatler carried an architect's drawing of the proposed edifice. This drawing has been reproduced below, showing several variations from the building which was finally erected in 1914, largely with the financial help of E. W.

Marston in memory of his father, Sylvester Marston, for whom the building is named. Along these newly painted corridors, khaki now replaces the civilian dress; the personnel of the teaching staff has been, to a great extent, included in the new regime together with other civilian instructors and commissioned officers of the United States Navy. Nevertheless, there are on all sides reminders of the past years, promises of the future, when Marston shall no longer find it necessary to interpret science to a warring world, but can again teach young men and women its constructive uses and send them out to build a new world of peace and scientific marvels in which many more generations of students may live and study. On the walls of the first floor there remain the pictures of eminent scientists, leaders in the various fields, examples for aspiring youth. The museum also, with its permanent collections, in addition to several valuable ones lent by college friends, is still open on the third floor to make more graphic the study of the strange and unusual as well as the ordinary.

Brown Gymnasium

To the east of the chapel, center of spiritual growth on the campus, stands Brown Gymnasium, center of physical development. This year in the classrooms and office, the personnel of the Navy school have taken up quarters and have received priority privileges in the use of the equipment and the building itself. Nevertheless, this is but a temporary thing. Memories that give promise of coming alive again remain in every part of the building, memories of Big Red Teams fighting for their school, crowds of students enthusiastically cheering them on, boys proudly wearing big red "J"'s on their sweaters. All these belong to Brown Gymnasium and none of them will ever cease to be a part of it.

The Gymnasium, as it now appears, was built in 1928 to replace the former building (below), which also bore the name of Brown, and stood on the location of the old tennis courts south of the heating plant. Both buildings were named in honor of Mr. A. D. Brown, who contributed very generously to the construction of the first one.

New Ely

Retaining the honored name of Ely from its predecessor, New Ely was built as a boys' dormitory in 1911 to afford more adequate accommodations for the students of William Jewell, who were, at that time, all boys. It was a place to call home during the school year, where the boys spent much of their time, sleeping, eating, studying, and making friends. Rivalry among the residents of the different floors, "bull sessions," big parties, loud masculine voices down the halls, were all a part of the year that each boy remembered afterward with a pang of regret that he was no longer a part of it.

In December, 1942, however, the occupants of New Ely were asked to leave the dormitory and find rooms in town in order that the Naval cadets might have living quarters. So New Ely became a "ship" and on its "decks" uniformed men walked and talked, slept and studied. Changes, nevertheless, no matter how large, can never quite remove from a building its history, its recollections of by-gone days and so it is with New Ely, especially because her recollections are not all that is left to her; there is the certain knowledge that her boys will return again to pursue their liberal education, that the uniforms will be replaced by individualistic civilian dress, that longer years of service to Jewell's sons lie ahead of her than behind. With this assurance, the dormitory accepts the "adopted" sons of the campus, welcomes them because they remind her of her own, for whose homecoming she is waiting and preparing.

Old Ely

The second building to be erected on William Jewell's campus, Old Ely served faithfully as a boys' dormitory from 1881 until New Ely was built, capable of housing the entire student body. When the boys moved from Old Ely, she became the "forgotten lady" of the Hill. Many of the rooms were used for storage space, and downstairs the Public Relations Office was located, but her old place of importance had been taken from her.

She lived almost alone with her memories of the past until the Naval school came to the William Jewell campus in 1943, when she underwent a rejuvenation process and also became a "ship" with her sister dormitories, occupied by regimented, uniformed cadets of the Navy V-5 program. At the present a tailoring establishment and sick bay are located on the first floor of Old Ely and the two upper stories are empty again since the number of cadets has been reduced, but she has proved that her time of usefulness has not passed, that she is capable of serving the school of which she is one of the oldest parts.

From the time of her construction in 1881 until 1890, Old Ely was able to provide lodging for all the students of the college who required it, but in that year three frame cottages were erected to the east of the college to house the overflow of students. In 1911 when New Ely was built, Old Ely ceased to serve as a dormitory and until recently had been neglected. Standing there now, however, across the walk from the library, Old Ely, with her advanced age and honored history arouses the respect and love of all the student bodies, past and present.

Melrose Hall

Despite the brevity of the history behind Melrose Hall, one of the newer buildings on the campus, it has been an important factor in the tradition of the college. For about seventy years William Jewell had been exclusively a school for young men, but as women began to take a more active part in the affairs of the world, more schools were opened to those who wished to continue their education beyond high school. In 1917 girls were first admitted to the halls of study and achievement on the "Old Hill" and it was soon necessary for them to have a dormitory to serve as their home on the campus. For this purpose Melrose was built with the aid of Mr. C. M. Treat who has helped finance many college buildings on the condition that they bear the name Melrose. The response to Pres. J. P. Greene's call for funds to make up the college's share of the expense was immediate and generous and the foundation was laid in 1925. Through its rooms and corridors have echoed the laughter and tears of four and a half college generations of co-eds. Poignant memories are stored there of innumerable midnight feasts, sleepless nights cramming for exams, and intense discussions of all the problems and events which make up college life.

At this time, however, as Jewell joins with the other institutions of her country to preserve the ideals taught so long on her campus, this hall has been converted into a "ship" with a crew of Naval cadets in training for the defense of their nation.

Melrose Hall, with its graceful beauty, will again be the college home of the girls on the campus after the duty to her country shall no longer demand of Jewell its spacious housing accommodations.

Arlington Hall

Hilltop House

Arlington Hall with its Southern air of chivalry and hospitality represented in its architecture, has served now for a year and a half as a dormitory for some of the girls who would, in normal years, have made their home in Melrose Hall. This stately building, the first fraternity house constructed at Jewell, was erected in 1930 for the Alpha Delta chapter of Kappa Alpha in the style which best portrayed the ideals and traditions of that order.

For thirty years Harmony House, as it is now known, was the home of Zeta Phi of Phi Gamma Delta, the oldest fraternity on William Jewell's campus. This continuous residence from 1913 was interrupted last year by the necessity of finding new dormitories for the girls who had given up their home to the Naval Aviation cadets.

From 1899, except for eight years, the Beta Xi chapter of Sigma Nu fraternity has occupied its house on north Water Street, until the exodus of the girls from their dormitory in 1943. Since almost all its members had been called into the armed service of their country, the fraternity gave up its house to the girls who promptly named it Hilltop House.

The boys who even last year lived in these houses are not forgotten and their homes are but borrowed while the owners are absent. No amount of change can still the echoes of masculine voices within the rooms or blot out the memory of the hopes and dreams of the young men who have lived within their walls. The war's end will see the brothers of these fraternities reunited in flesh and spirit and few will be the ones who will remember the brief span of the girls' residence here.

The former home of Jewell's president has for the last two years as Colonial House served as a dormitory for girls. It stands in graceful dignity opposite the chapel presenting a picture of quiet beauty from the campus proper. For the older students it is still strange to think of this building as anything but the residence of the President, but as the years pass, the reality of the change will be more deeply impressed upon the students, until it, too, will become traditionally accepted.

The gruesome name of the newest girls' dormitory is not indicative of the spirit within. Skull House stands on a hill of its own, some distance from the campus, the newest member of the Jewell family. With the increasing number of girls enrolled in college and the necessity of housing

Colonial House

This house was built in 1780 and is one of the finest examples of colonial architecture in the city. It was designed by the architect John H. Burt Foster and built by the contractor John H. Burt Foster. The house is located at 1234 Main Street, New York, N.Y. It is a two-story house with a gabled roof and a chimney on the right side. The front porch is supported by columns and has a decorative railing. The house is surrounded by trees and a lawn.

Dr. Walter Pope Binns

Dr. Walter Pope Binns, the ninth president of William Jewell College, is a native of Georgia where he attended Mercer University from which he was graduated in 1918. In the first World War he served as a chaplain with the rank of first lieutenant and upon his return studied at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, receiving his Th.M. degree in 1923. In 1929 his alma mater conferred upon him the degree of D.D. He had been pastor of the First Baptist Church in Roanoke, Virginia, since 1931 until he came to the Hill to take up the responsibilities of president.

In this first year of his presidency, Dr. Binns has made a definite place for himself, not only in the tradition and history of the school, but also in the hearts of the faculty and students who have worked and studied with him. He has made a concerted effort to learn the inner workings of all the phases of the college life in order to understand the problems facing the various departments.

He has demonstrated his excellent judgment and clear reasoning on numerous occasions throughout the year and has endeared himself to the student body by his whole-hearted participation in all the school events and his personal interest in the individuals who make up the student group.

His chapel talks have been extremely worthwhile and thoughtful, besides being brief and straightforward, which has gained for him an attentive, appreciative student audience.

William Jewell has known a long history of able, honored presidents from the time of its founding. The first president was Rev. R. S. Thomas from Missouri University, then Rev. William Thompson, a graduate of the University of Edinburgh. The third man called to hold this high position was Rev. Thomas Rambaut, graduated from Trinity College in Dublin, and he was succeeded by Dr. John Priest Greene from the Third Baptist Church in St. Louis, who remained in office for twenty-eight years. Dr. David Jones Evans followed him for almost a two year term and was succeeded by Dr. H. C. Wayman, professor in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Dr. John F. Herget followed him in 1928 coming from a pastorate of twenty-five years at the Ninth Street Baptist Church in Cincinnati, Ohio, and when, after fourteen years he resigned, Dr. H. I. Hester became Interim President for 1942-43. Now to this distinguished list will be added the name of Dr. Walter Pope Binns who so admirably lives up to the qualities traditionally possessed by William Jewell's presidents.

To DR. WALTER POPE BINNS

Ninth Pilot of H. M. S. William Jewell

Officially piped aboard, November 11, 1943

We, the crew of faculty and students, wish to express our appreciation for your year of earnest endeavor. Before various audiences in different parts of the country you have portrayed authentically the life and ideals of William Jewell. You have made successful efforts to understand the intricate mechanisms of all the parts of our ship which were unfamiliar to you.

H.M.S. William Jewell has been ably piloted in past years and has docked at many harbors of achievement on her way. However, we know that under your direction we will forge ahead to new and more distant harbors of knowledge and Christian living.

We pledge to you our support and whole-hearted cooperation in the coming year as our ship steams ahead through the troubled waters of this war. Here lies our field of service, preserving the Jewell traditions and spirit for her sons who are gallantly fighting and dying on distant battlefields. Their faith in us must not be betrayed; they are depending upon us and we must be true to that trust. Guided by you, our new pilot, we will keep the faith with them and upon their return, in spirit or in flesh, they will find their alma mater proudly continuing her history of achievement in their names and to their memories.

So, H.M.S. William Jewell has begun the last lap of her voyage to the port of a Hundred Years' Service to mankind under the divine guidance of our King through his servant, our new pilot, a leader whom we follow, unafraid.

Dr. Hubert Inman Hester

After his capable service as the Interim President of William Jewell College last year, a new office, that of Vice President, has been created for Dr. Hester in order to prevent the loss to the administration of his splendid executive abilities so well demonstrated during his term of office, especially in making the necessary adjustments for the coming of the Naval Flight Preparatory School to Jewell's campus. This new position of Vice President is not one in name only, for with it comes the demand for many hours of intensive thought and industry. It requires that he be on hand to act for the school in the event of Dr. Binns' absence, in addition to acting as the link between the past and present for Dr. Binns as he takes over the intricate details of the presidency to which he has not been accustomed. His position is, essentially, that of a "middle man" acting between past and present in the administration, and between the Navy program on the campus and the liberal arts curriculum of which Jewell has always been proud. The place is a difficult one, but one which Dr. Hester fills admirably, tactfully uniting the various phases of college life.

In addition to his administrative duties, Dr. Hester is Head of the Department of Religion and Philosophy, to which position he came in 1926, having received his Th.D. degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. This requires not only meeting his Bible classes daily, but also serving as consultant for the ministerial students on the campus. Dr. Hester has personified throughout his years of service at Jewell those qualities which characterize a gentleman and a scholar. His industry, friendliness, courtesy, understanding, and brilliant mind have earned for him the respect and admiration of all who have come in contact with him. He has been always a willing advisor and friend to all the students and, above all, to William Jewell College herself.

Dean Allen J. Moon

Dr. Allen J. Moon, Dean of the College and Head of the Department of Ancient Languages, came to William Jewell in 1925 and has filled his positions since that time with conscientious effort and inward enjoyment of his task. His gentlemanly nature, his slow, unassuming humor, and his philosophical air make him one of the most beloved professors on the Hill. To him the students go seeking advice about their curricula and from him they receive willing and understanding guidance. His nineteen years on Jewell's campus have given him a true perspective of the college, its liberal arts course, and its traditions which he passes on to the students in his contacts with them.

With his A.M. and LL.D. degrees from Howard College and graduate work in the University of Virginia and the University of Chicago, Dr. Moon is a teacher, well qualified to instruct young people. With his love for his profession and, especially, his subject, and his deep understanding of his students, Dr. Moon is a friend to all the young men and women who have studied in William Jewell.

Dean Ruth McDaniel

Miss Ruth McDaniel came to the William Jewell campus in the mid-year of 1943. Hers was a difficult position as Dean of Women, especially at that time. She had scarcely any time to become acquainted with the school before the girls were moved from the larger dormitory on the campus to be divided up among three fraternity houses out in town. However, despite the problems which she has faced, Miss McDaniel has not faltered and has administered her office with wisdom and graciousness.

Miss McDaniel's duties are twofold as she is also Professor of French and Spanish in the Modern Language Department. She received her A.M. from the University of Missouri and has done graduate work in Bryn Mawr, in the British-American School of Languages, Santander, Spain, in the Franco-American Institute, Vichy, France, and in the University of California. With this excellent preparation for her classes, Dean McDaniel has given more than adequate instruction in her field and has made a place for herself on the campus and in the hearts of the members of the student body.

Dr. J. B. Sullivan

Fittingly the Registrar of William Jewell, Dr. J. B. Sullivan, has the reputation for remembering names. His interest in the students enrolled in the college and his patient and comprehensive instruction as Head of the Education and Psychology Department have won for him the appreciation and respect of everyone. He came to Jewell in 1925 and has his Ph.D. degree from George Washington University.

Mr. H. B. Early

An integral part of the business of the college, that of finances, is entrusted to the capable hands of Mr. H. B.

Early, the college treasurer. Coming to the campus in 1928, Mr. Early has, with his dry humor and excellent business abilities, handled the financial phase of William Jewell's many-sided personality.

Mr. J. E. Davis

The business manager of William Jewell College is Mr. John E. Davis, who came back to the campus as professor in 1907 after receiving his A.B. degree here. Later work at the University of Chicago fitted him for Head of the Department of Physics. Despite his business duties, which have greatly increased since the advent of the Navy, his ready smile and warm greeting can be depended upon.

Mr. C. J. Prince

Mr. Chester J. Prince is the Personnel Director of William Jewell College, which position he came to fill in 1936. Since that time he has performed the duties pertaining to it with thoroughness and ability. He is a well-read white-haired gentleman whose rich philosophy and keen insight have brought him the admiration and respect of the students.

Prof. P. Caspar Harvey

The man with the pipe, eye shade, and inevitable story to tell is Professor P. Caspar Harvey, Director of Public Relations. He enthusiastically supervises publicity and alumni activities, as well as the Freshman DX course. He received his A.M. degree at William Jewell and returned as professor in 1920. Besides his English courses, Professor Harvey is Director of Forensics on the Hill.

Kenneth Duncan

Since Joe Amery, Jr., answered the call of his country by joining the Navy, Kenneth Duncan has held the position of enrollment secretary for William Jewell College. His duties are many and varied, calling for hours of planning and detailed work. While he is performing these responsibilities ably, Kenneth is also continuing his study for his A.B. degree.

Miss Opal Carlin

One of the most important parts of a student's life is the time he spends in the library preparing for recitations. Over this domain Miss Opal Carlin reigns with gracious firmness. After serving two years as assistant librarian to Dr. J. C. Armstrong, Miss Carlin succeeded him upon his death in 1937. In preparation for her position, she has received the B.L.S. degree from Columbia University.

Mrs. Jas. Criswell

Mrs. James Criswell served as assistant librarian to Miss Carlin for a year and a half. With her willingness and ability to take responsibility she was able to relieve Miss Carlin of many tiresome details of the library work. The student body was sorry to see Mrs. Criswell leave in the middle of the year, but knows that she has an able successor in Mrs. Nona Tremain.

Secretaries to the Administration . . .

With willing hands and capable minds, the secretaries to the administrative personnel perform their duties of assistance to the officials of the college. Theirs is the job of keeping in order the countless cumbersome details which would otherwise monopolize the time of their employers. More of the efficiency in the administrative offices is due to the untiring efforts of these secretaries than is apparent to the casual observer. To these faithful helpers goes the gratitude and praise of the entire student body and faculty.

MISS FRANCES BLAIR
Secretary to the President, Vice-President, and Dean

MISS CHRISTINE PAGE
Secretary to the Business Manager

MISS MARY JONES
Secretary to the Registrar

MISS ELLA PARROTT
MISS ELEANOR MAJOR
Secretaries to the Treasurer

MISS ELIZABETH CASEBOLT
Secretary to the Enrollment Secretary

Thirty-three

Student Assistants . . .

"Knowledge is power," so the saying goes, and the truth of that statement is proved by the successful lives of many of Jewell's students who have served as assistants to the faculty during their school years.

Invaluable experience is gained by the student assistant in the field of his particular interest. The training in the intricacies of the various departments enables the students to understand better the difficulties and problems facing the teacher in his efforts to share his experience with the young people in his classes.

This group forms a link between the faculty and students which is of mutual benefit in fostering appreciation of both points of view.

The student assistants in the several departments on the campus this year were:

President of the Student Body . . .

Clayborn Landers, President of the 1943-44 student body, has fulfilled his office capably and well. His has been the difficult responsibility of leading a small and largely new student group in an effort to preserve on the campus the traditions which have been a part of William Jewell for so many years. In this office Clay has followed many of the ablest and most devoted sons Jewell has had, and he has lived up to the standards they left, enthusiastically promoting on the campus the spirit so dear to the hearts of the Jewell men, many now fighting for the ideals upon which their alma mater is founded.

The Big Red Team

Despite the curtailment of sports in many schools this year due to wartime conditions, William Jewell's Big Red Team did the unexpected, just as it always does when the "going gets tough," and scheduled nine of the strongest elevens that a Jewell team has faced since the "good old days" when Dad Bowles' men matched brawn and brain with Missouri U. and Kansas.

Stimulated by the addition of 500 Naval V-5 cadets, Coach Godfriaux found 101 aspirants reporting for the initial workouts and from this group a squad of around forty men was chosen by him and his associates, Lieut. C. S. Moll, head of the William Jewell Flight Preparatory School Physical Training Division and former coach at Kansas State College, Ensign H. T. Smith, former Duke University fullback and a member of that institution's coaching staff, and Lieut. (jg) Harold Johnk, of Omaha, Nebraska, formerly a coach at the University of Omaha, and preparation was begun for the Wentworth game.

Inspired by a rousing kickoff pep rally, held by the joint Jewell and Naval school student bodies in their honor, the Cardinals trampled a smaller Wentworth team 57-18, as Deck and Keckley ran wild, scoring on straight line plays.

Out for still bigger game the Cards, two weeks later, locked horns with Kansas State of the Big 6 Conference and left the Wildcats hanging on the short end of a 19-6 score as they took advantage of K. State's fumbles to gain a victory before a crowd of 3,600. Keckley shone brilliantly in this victory as he accounted for 18 of the 19 Jewell tallies.

But this record was not to stand, for the members of this team were soon to play their last game together, and exchange cleats for planes to become players on a world-wide gridiron, because for twenty-five of these cadets the Drake game marked the end of their William Jewell football careers, and as their classmates marched into John Gano Chapel for graduation exercises, these men went into battle with the gridders of Drake University ending their Jewell season with a 19-27 loss after two brilliant goal line stands.

The Jewell coaches now found themselves without their starters and faced with the task of building another team from their squad of eager but raw recruits. However, in wartime the impossible is done, and a week later the Cardinals began a three-game road trip, meeting Pittsburg Teachers for the first of their two scheduled games and dropping a 13-0 decision to them.

The new team found themselves, however, in their second game and trampled Missouri Valley 34-0. This game, nevertheless, proved to be a greater loss than victory, for the Jewellites lost the services of their captain and center, Bob Burgess, for the season due to a knee injury, and their "fighting parson" Carl Burkhardt received a shoulder injury which caused him trouble throughout the rest of the season.

In their final out-of-town game the Redbirds, led by Cal Purdin, former Chicago Cardinal professional, swamped Rosecrans' fliers 18-0.

Back home for their two final tilts, the Cards proved no match for Coach Charley Morgan's undefeated Pittsburg team and dropped the Thanksgiving Day battle to them 32-6.

Then came the Homecoming game with its traditional glamor, but lacking the faces of many grads who heretofore annually found their way back to the "old hill" to cheer the Cardinals on. Somehow, Jewell's adopted sons, however, caught the feeling of just what losing that Homecoming game would mean and in a thrill-packed final quarter with Jewell one point behind, Howard Hawkins kicked the extra point, after Jimmie Gourley and Bob Smith had teamed together to move the ball over the double stripes, and the day was saved for the Homecoming fans.

And so once again, even though plagued by the stern necessities of war and facing at times almost complete demobilization due to the graduation of the classes in the Naval school, Jewell's Cardinals kept alive the Jewell spirit—a spirit to the students on the hill, but to those far away, a creed, a goal of attainment. In this sense the team has not merely won football games this season, but has preserved a cherished heritage for posterity. Now these adopted sons join the other boys who have gone from Jewell to fight for her and for the world she represents. Some will return to her classrooms and playing fields; for others the great game in which they are now participating will be their last. With pride Jewell remembers and loves all these—her sons.

The "Little Red Team"

BURKHARDT

MILES

Probably the most significant contribution to the perpetuation of our Jewell spirit this year was not made by seasoned sons of the cardinal and black, but by freshmen — freshmen whose love of football and desire to do their part in the preservation of William Jewell's traditions prompted them to organize a freshman football team.

Their efforts are a concrete example of what determination can accomplish, for, despite their battered equipment, which had once served as armor for other great Jewell teams, and with only the end zone of Jewell Field for practice ground, these boys, under the direction of Carl Burkhardt and Jim Miles, came through and won. Their wholehearted devotion to Jewell has been instrumental in maintaining on the campus this year a feeling of loyalty and enthusiasm, which might otherwise have failed to live through the changes and subsequent apathy of the students caused by the uneasiness of war.

Against their first rival, Smithville High School, coached by Clay Landers, the Freshmen, led by Gary Robertson and Charles Witthaus, rolled up a total of 40 points to their opponents' 0.

After this conquest the "little red team" invaded Liberty and with Charles Witthaus and Ernie Simon filling the air with passes, which set the stage for their touchdowns, the freshmen drove to a 39-0 triumph over the Bluejays.

They won on the football field, yes, but those conquests were trivial in comparison to their real victory, their contribution to the preservation of the Jewell spirit. These sons of Jewell, despite their youth, have caught the vision she has granted to many others in her valiant history and holds in store for countless future generations. They not only possess the spirit of the campus, they are that spirit.

Intramural Basketball—Boys

Intramural sports have played a more important role in life at William Jewell this year since the athletic competition with other schools was severely limited all year and actually non-existent in the basketball season. Despite the depletion in their numbers, Jewell's sons have upheld her tradition of athletic interest and endeavor. With more enthusiasm than has been evident in former years, the boys have entered into the intramural sport schedule and participated wholeheartedly.

Five teams took part in the competition and eight games were played in the first round with two others forfeited. In the second round, due to the scarlet fever threat, only two games were completed. The championship team was that of the K.A. fraternity with a 100% score of five games won out of five played. Four victories out of five games gave Phi Gamma Delta second place, with the others ranking: Independents, third, Preachers, fourth, and Sigma Nu-Lambda Chi, fifth. The games were played in the gymnasium in the evening when the Navy classes for the day had ended.

The season began on January 17 with a game between the K.A. team and the Preachers which the K. A.'s won 34-16. In the same week the Phi Gamma Delta team won 19-10 over the Independents, and in the third game, the K.A.'s again overcame their opponents, the Sigma Nu-Lambda Chi team, 74-19. On January 26 the Preachers lost to the Phi Gams 21-27 and in the last game in January the Independents lost to the K.A.'s 20-31. The Phi Gams started the next month with a 31-25 victory over the combined Sigma Nu-Lambda Chi team, but lost the next week 23-32 to the K.A. team. The eighth game played between the Independents and the Preachers finished with a 34-25 score for the Independents. The last two games of the first round were victories for the Independents and the Preachers by virtue of the forfeiture of the Sigma Nu-Lambda Chi team. The second round which was never completed, consisted of another K.A. victory of 37-25 over the Preachers and then a 26-20 score for the Phi Gams against the Independents. Clay Landers was the principal referee for the games with the assistance of A. W. Michael, Bill Myers, Douglas Scrivner, and Lawrence Smith.

This year, in the face of enormous odds, the spirit of Jewell has remained alive on her basketball courts through the loyalty and devotion of her sons who are still on her campus in the flesh. Their contributions to that spirit have been a continuation of the long history of achievement which has always belonged to Jewell and made in the name of her sons, present in spirit but far away in physical reality, who are dreaming of seeing Jewell's colors flying again in a new world they are building.

Jane Beta Sig vs. TNT Will it or won't it?

Intramural Sports—Girls

LOIS WISLER

Although the girls' intramural tournaments are too new to be classed as a tradition yet, the daughters of Jewell are doing their part to keep her spirit alive on the Hill. The keen interest and the outstanding sportsmanship in the games this year have contributed greatly to the effort of maintaining the school enthusiasm and loyalty while her sons are fighting gallantly on other fields.

During the fall term the girls played a volley ball tournament in which three teams participated, the Beta Sigma Omicron team, the Independents, and the TNT's. Each team played two games and the Beta Sig team was announced as the final victor, with the TNT's in second place, and the Independents in third. The games were played on the outdoor courts and were refereed by Miss Wisler, instructor in girls' physical education.

The winning Beta Sig team was made up of the following girls: Margaret Burton, Jana Hamacher, Lucy Herget, Rita Husman, Bonnie Lawrence, Margaret Preston, Hope Scott, Dorothy Van Dyke, Kathryn Van Dyke, Mary Jane Wegert, and Loretta Welf.

Then, beginning in the winter term and extending into the spring, a basketball tournament was held in which the same organizations entered teams. Each team played four games refereed by Miss Wisler and the TNT team was the winner. The Beta Sigs held second honors and the Independents, third. The games were alternated with the boys' games and were played in the evening when the Navy was not using the gymnasium.

In the spring term the tennis, ping-pong, and baseball tournaments will be played by these three organizations and at the end of the year a cup will be awarded to the group whose teams have won the greatest number of the tournaments.

This is the first year that the girls' intramural sports have attracted such lively interest on the Hill and the system of tournaments will probably become one of the well-loved traditions of the campus. During this year, when Jewell's sons have been absent from her, her daughters have come through with flying colors "to keep her fame" until the day when peace shall bring them all together again.

Student Senate

The Student Senate is the official link between the student body and the administration. The aim of this group is a better understanding and cooperation between the students and faculty in their united effort to work together for Jewell. The activities of the Student Senate this year have included the control of all the school elections and the presentation of several chapel programs, as well as suggestions to the faculty about holidays, Work Day, and Saturday classes.

Who's Who

Probst, Miss McDaniel, Prince, Miss Rice.

Panaegis

The high honor of being tapped for Panaegis is one of the greatest thrills in the life of a Jewell co-ed. Membership in this highly esteemed society is determined by vote of the self-perpetuating body and is limited to the seven senior women possessing the highest qualities of leadership, personality, scholarship, and character. The Panaegis woman typifies all that is fine in the tradition of William Jewell and she will be expected after graduation to exemplify those qualities of mind and spirit which distinguished her in college.

Aeons

Since that Field Day in 1906 when Manley O. Hudson and other charter members of the Aeons pinned ribbons on several outstanding Jewell men, this honorary society for senior men has been striving "to serve the best interests of William Jewell."

The charter members smile now at their presumption in nominating themselves to membership. They have been justified, however, by this self-perpetuating honor group whose members have carried upon their shoulders the responsibility of upholding Jewell's tradition of scholarly leadership.

Theta Chi Delta

The Alpha Nu chapter of Theta Chi Delta, the national chemistry fraternity, was installed at William Jewell in 1931, replacing a local group, the "Khem Club." The purpose of the society is to stimulate a lasting interest in its field. Prof. Henry Godfriaux, co-sponsor of the organization with Dr. George Duerksen, is also the Grand Secretary-Treasurer of the fraternity.

Membership requires five completed terms of "B" in chemistry.

Pi Gamma Mu

Upholding one of the highest of ideals, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free," the Missouri Epsilon Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity chartered at Jewell in 1930, seeks to instill in the minds of students a scientific attitude and social idealism with which to meet the social problems of the world. The sponsor of this club is Prof. Van Dyke.

In 1930 Sigma Pi Sigma, national physics fraternity, was chartered at William Jewell. It provides a bond among those students who excel in physics, requiring of each member four terms of "B" in this subject and a desire to further the cause of physics through continued study and interest. The organization has been an active one on the campus this year, meeting twice a month. Professors Davis, Jones, and Stark are its sponsors.

In 1938 Epsilon Omega Pi was founded at Jewell to help its members, girls preparing for definite Christian service, learn more about the phases of work which they intend to enter. The fourfold purpose of the organization has been development spiritually, intellectually, physically, and

Gamma Beta Nu

Organized in 1931, this group, composed of the wives of ministerial students in William Jewell, has tried to carry out the idea of its motto, "Wives help to win," the Greek words for which give the initials of the name, Gamma Beta Nu. The origin of the group was largely due to the activity and interest of Mrs. Amel Whitwer, a student herself as well as a wife, who saw the need for an organization among these young wives, many of whom were not students, that would give them contact with each other, some touch with the college, and a social group of their own, in which to find helpful discussion of common problems, relaxation with those of mutual interests, and best of all, friendships to last through the years. By means of these aims the members hope to find themselves better fitted to be real help-meets to their husbands, as they go out into their ministry.

The organization has varied in size from year to year. This year it has thirty-eight members, as large a group as it has ever had, and nearly half of these enrolled in college. Mrs. F. M. Derwacter has sponsored Gamma Beta Nu from the beginning. Mrs. A. S. Cutts, wife of the pastor of the Liberty Baptist Church, and Mrs. L. A. Duce are honorary members. Mrs. L. W. Cleland is an alumna member having been in the charter group.

The monthly social meetings are held at the homes of the members and are varied by an occasional pot-luck supper or picnic where the families meet and get acquainted. Two events of the year which have become traditional are the Spring Banquet in honor of the husbands and the wives who are graduating, and the outdoor Sunrise Breakfast near Commencement, held as a farewell to those girls who are leaving.

Although the part they play in the religious life of the college is perhaps pushed into the background and remains unnoticed by many people, nevertheless, these wives make a considerable contribution which deserves recognition. The religious history of William Jewell is a long one started by the names of many well-known religious leaders of yesterday and today. The wives, organized in Gamma Beta Nu, have been a force behind the accomplishments of those men of former years and are a force behind the promise of worthwhile things from today's ministerial students.

Baptist Student Union

The Baptist Student Union on the William Jewell campus is a cooperating group between the religious work on the Hill and that in the local Baptist Church. Its program among the students is to represent all the Baptist religious activity on the campus and to unify it into a coordinated organization. The membership of the B.S.U. includes all the Baptist students in the college who are voluntary members of any religious organization. The aim of the group is to further the religious development and spiritual growth of its members and those others with whom it may come in contact.

The organization is led by a group of its members who, by their devotion and dependability, have qualified for the responsibilities of leadership. These officers form the B.S.U. Council which meets weekly to direct the endeavors of the group as a whole.

The B.S.U. began this year, 1943-44, with a "Get-Acquainted" buffet supper at the church for the students and faculty. During the year it sponsored the morning watch programs every day in Philomathic Hall before classes began, and actively supported a "Join the Church Sunday" among the students of all denominations. Also the annual banquet was held at the church and a good representation from Jewell attended the

William Jewell Christian Association

The William Jewell Christian Association has as its aims to "co-ordinate existing religious activities on the campus, to give student encouragement toward deeper religious growth by helping them to work together in a finer unity." The membership includes the entire student body and the governing group is a council made up of the student executive committee, the president of the college, the faculty committee on religious activities, and the ministers of the local churches. An attempt is made each year to include on the student executive committee members of each denomination. The officers are nominated by the committee and elected by the student body. Two collections received during the year from the students serve to defray the expenses of the activities of the organization. It is a member of the Southwest Council of Student Christian Associations.

In the year 1943-44 several projects were undertaken. Sunday School was held at the Odd Fellows Home every Sunday with preaching services once a month, special work was carried on in the Kansas City missions, and two well-planned chapel programs were presented to the students. At the first of these Dr. Frank Connelly, returned this year from mission work in China, was the guest speaker with the story of life in a concentration camp where a group of missionaries was confined, and of the fine spirit that grew up among the representatives of the various denominations and faiths. The day before Good Friday Dr. Morris Ford, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Jackson, Tennessee, and formerly of Calvary Baptist Church in Kansas City, sang and then spoke on the power of Christ's crucifixion to conquer Death for everyone. Other outstanding activities of the year were the Sadie Hawkins Party and the accompanying costume contest for the students in the fall and the Sunrise Easter Service in the spring at which Dr. Binns gave an inspirational message.

The officers for 1943-44 were the following:

Young Women's Auxiliary

The Young Women's Auxiliary was founded on the William Jewell campus in 1929 to unite the girls in an organization which would help them to grow in Christian character and leadership. During the year, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Allen S. Cutts and the planning of the president, Mary Jones, and the program chairmen, Dorothy Medearis and Dorothy Kirchner, a group of inspiring and challenging programs were presented.

The highlights of the year included a tea at the beginning of school in the home of Mrs. Binns. During the winter term a Valentine tea and musical program were enjoyed in Mrs. Hester's home and in the spring the annual banquet of the group was served at the church.

The contribution of Y.W.A. to the religious life and tradition of the Hill is a large one which has been ably maintained by this year's officers and members and which will be carried on by succeeding student generations.

Alpha Phi Omega

Alpha Phi Omega, with its motto of "Service," one of the highest ideals of man, was founded on the Jewell campus as a local fraternity in 1931 and joined the national organization in 1934. Judge E. E. Kirkland and Dr. H. I. Hester were influential in starting it and since the time of its first member, George F. Aull, it has risen to a position of esteem and importance both as a local group on William Jewell's campus and as a national fraternity, founded in 1925 at Lafayette College.

As its motto states, Alpha Phi Omega stands for service of every kind, assembling within its fellowship under the Scout Oath and Laws, college men who are willing and eager to serve their fellow students and countrymen. The only requirement for admission is that a student have experience as a Boy Scout.

The services rendered by Alpha Phi Omega to William Jewell have been many and very worthwhile. Some of the projects undertaken and completed successfully this year have been the exhibition of several educational motion pictures, the direction of the parking of cars at the inauguration of President Binns and other helpful activities that week, the sponsoring of the bloodtyping of all the members of the student body, and the assistance in the orientation of new students.

In May the organization held its annual breakfast at which Roe Bartle, the well-known Boy Scout executive, was the principal speaker. Besides Dr. Gier, whose interest and help have been unfailing, Dr. Hester, Dr. Moon, Prof. Davis, "Dad" Bowles, and Prof. Harvey also served as faculty sponsors. Since its appearance at William Jewell, Alpha Phi Omega has counted a membership of more than one hundred students.

This National Service Organization has been an active factor this year, as always, in maintaining the spirit that is the keynote of Jewell Hill. Although many of its members have answered the call of their country, those who remain in school are faithful to the Scout laws and the ideals of the college in the name of their brothers absent on fields of action.

Forensics

Jewell's outstanding record in the field of forensics has brought her much fame in the past, and this year's debaters under the coaching of Charles Smith, a student orator and debater himself, have kept up the tradition of excellence although the number participating in the forensic tournaments this year has been curtailed.

The first debate of the year found Polly Ehlers and Loyd Self representing Jewell on the negative team against Westminster's affirmative. Later, on a trip to Park College, Polly and Helen Irminger met the girls' team and Loyd and Stanley Dodgson debated against the boys'. These debates were non-decisional.

The regional tournament, held this year in

CHARLES SMITH

Before the debate began, two orations were delivered, one by a student from Park and the other by Charles Smith of Jewell. Charles had received a rating of superior at the Kirksville regional tournament and later represented Missouri in the national tournament held at Northwestern University in the last part of April. In this contest he ranked third with only a point separating each of the first three winners.

This year in the absence of Joe Amery, debate coach, who is now in the Navy, Charles Smith has directed the activities of the forensic participants under the supervision of Prof. P. Caspar Harvey, Director of Forensics.

Pi Kappa Delta

Pi Kappa Delta, the William Jewell chapter of the national honorary forensics fraternity, has completed another outstanding year in its endeavor to encourage and promote intercollegiate oratory, debate, and public speaking. It is built upon the basis of four degrees of achievement which are awarded to the members upon their completion of the required work in the field of forensics. The degrees in the order of their attainment are Fraternity, Proficiency, Honor, and Special Distinction and from their ranks have come many of the outstanding sons and daughters of Jewell.

Several members of the organization who would have been active in its program this year have gone to another field of service, that of their country. Although their speaking talents may not be exercised in this new work, the members still on the campus are carrying on for them until they return to take up their place in the group again.

Only one present student member of Pi Kappa Delta has attained the highest degree, that of Special Distinction. This honor belongs to Charles Smith in the field of oratory, debating and instruction. Jewell's debate coach, Ensign Joe Amery of the U.S. Navy, holds this degree in debating and instruction and Prof. P. Caspar Harvey in instruction. The other members are following in these and other illustrious footsteps and have brought honor to their college through their efforts this year.

Jewell students have always taken a great interest in the intercollegiate tournaments of various kinds, participating in the name, and for the glory of their school. There have been many football, basketball, and track stars from Jewell's campus, there have been actors of outstanding merit on her stage, there have been talented musicians among her sons and daughters, but never have these other illustrious members of her student body overshadowed the brilliant speakers who have, in the past and present, carried her name high among the other schools competing in the oratory, debate, and public speaking tournaments. They are an important part of Jewell and the prominence of their accomplishments has become traditional on the hill.

Ye Grandsons of Rest

The popular motto of this amazing organization is "Malum labor est"; the purpose, to do nothing at all. Membership requirements are to abstain from all appearance of work and to be a senior.

Passing time has changed the organization, founded in 1900 by "Daddy" Fruit with Mr. Prince as a member, from Sons of Rest to Grandsons. Its flower, the lily — it toils not, neither does it spin, its yell: Raw-buck, Saw-buck, Malum labor est. Live ever, Work never, Sons of Rest.

Creative writing as an outlet for the expression of feeling and imagination is fostered on the Hill by the former Scribblers' Club founded in 1923 which became Mu Beta of Sigma Tau Delta in 1928. Original manuscripts submitted by hopeful aspirants are judged on the basis of originality, sincerity, truth and design. Highlight of this year was a spring dinner to which each member came as a poem.

International Relations Club

The International Relations Club on the Hill is one of thousands like it on the campuses of America and foreign countries. It seeks to impart to the student a better understanding of world political and economic conditions and to stimulate a modern outlook toward world-wide peace, now especially, when it is such a vital issue. By developing a sincere and youthful interest in current problems, it seeks to establish better relations among world neighbors.

Topics of especial importance to the club this year were those dealing with International Economics, World War II, Peace and Post-War Reconstruction. One of the thought-provoking meetings was planned around a broadcast forum discussing whether or not mass bombing by the Allies was justifiable. After hearing the opinions of the experts on the subject, the club itself held a forum to clarify their own points of view. Prof. Van Dyke and Prof. Smith, the faculty sponsors of the organization, led the discussion.

The William Jewell International Relations Club was founded in 1923 and has had increasingly large memberships since that time. Its interest has always been a study of the principles underlying the conduct of nations in their relations with one another and the resultant effects of the actions of one country upon its neighbors.

Membership includes those students who are interested in furthering the cause of international relations through intelligent and unbiased study. The club helps them to maintain and enlighten that interest so that it will continue, after college days, to be an influence in their thinking. This country is in need of young people to ponder the international affairs and to formulate logical and impartial opinions with which to control the economic and political life of the nation when it shall pass to their generation to do so. The part this relatively small organization will play in the future lives of its members and in the future life of their country may be far greater than is dreamed at the present time.

These students are representatives of tomorrow's leaders in all the fields of labor which man undertakes. They may be senators, governors, diplomats, and, certainly, the voting public which will help form the policies of tomorrow's new-made world.

The tolerance and clear thinking which are characteristic of this group are also characteristic of the Jewell spirit which men are fighting now to keep alive against forces determined to stifle its ideals.

Phi Epsilon

Phi Epsilon Honor Society celebrates its tenth anniversary with the announcement of the members from the class of 1944. It was founded in 1935 by the members of Phi Beta Kappa then on the faculty of William Jewell: Dr. C. J. Elmore, Nebraska 1896; Miss Helen Churchill, Kansas 1928; and Dr. Frederick M. Derwacter, Denison 1912. The organization was planned to elect annually members of the Senior Class to be known as local associates of Phi Beta Kappa. These members are chosen, in accordance with the traditions of Phi Beta Kappa, on the basis of scholarship, as indicated by the character of the work done through the entire college course.

Members of Phi Beta Kappa in the community who have aided in the promotion of this organization have been Dr. Harold G. Barr, Drake, 1923, and Mrs. F. M. Derwacter, Vassar 1917. Phi Epsilon in 1942 selected as its first honorary member President John F. Herget, who gave the organization his encouragement and active support from the start. The total membership of the Society, including the class of 1944, is 63.

Pan American Club

The Pan American Club was organized last year to help further the policy of goodwill throughout the Americas. Under the direction of its first two presidents, Phyllis Lewars, who had lived in Central America, and Lucy Herget, the membership increased rapidly. At the meetings enlightening discussions and diverting entertainments on the Pan American theme were presented. One of the new members this year is Mario Tabush of Guatemala.

The Student

The Student is a publication by, of, and for the students of William Jewell and presents a magnificent record of Jewell's school history. It was first published as a monthly in February, 1894, and by 1900 had increased its yearly price from fifty cents to seventy-five and had begun to emphasize athletics. 1914, with the world at war, saw the Student with athletics in the headlines—Jewell playing K. U. and M. U. in football. In 1917 the girls came to Jewell—eleven of them—and the Student tells in detail of this dramatic change. In 1925 the Student mentioned such stories as: Seventy-five Men Out for Football, Jewell's New Gym

This year the editors of the Student, each serving one half year, were Jim Stertz and Vervia Probst, assisted by their associates, Nick Housley, A. V. William Jewell Players

VIRGINIA D. RICE

The history of the William Jewell Players dates back to the time when no drama course was offered on this campus and, through the efforts of Dr. J. P. Fruit, a dramatic club was formed called the J. P. Fruit Dramatic Club. This organization handled every phase of production of the college plays until a teacher, Miss Ethel Marie Henderson, was employed to start a dramatic course and became, also, the sponsor of the club. When Miss Rice came to replace Miss Henderson, the club was renamed the William Jewell Players.

The Players actively participated, as a whole and individually, in the dramatic efforts of this year and, despite the shortage of manpower, presented three very successful plays.

A. A. Milne's English comedy, Mr. Pim Passes By, was presented November 2, 1943, for the first production of the year with the following cast: Ann, Mary Louise Derwacter; Carraway Pim, Everett Hancock; Dinah, Shirley Vardeman; Brian Strange, Ernest Simon;

Scenes: "Love in a Mist," "And There Were Voices," and "Mr. Pim Passes By" . . . Diana and Gregory . . . Mary Todd and Abe.

Olivia Marden, Jerry Schoech; George Marden, J.P., Stanley Dodgson; Lady Marden, Willa Ruthe Lewis.

The second play of the season was based on the life of Abraham Lincoln, written by Robert Knipe, and entitled, And There Were Voices. The "home-spun humor" as well as the dignity and greatness of America's Abraham Lincoln were sympathetically portrayed to an appreciative audience. The cast was as follows: Billy Herndon, Medford Speaker; Old Rip, Ernest Simon; Judge Stuart, Everett Hancock; Ninian Edwards, Richard Shanklin; Dr. Richard Elliott, Bill Nelson; Abraham Lincoln, Joseph Hickman; Joshua Speed, Carl Burkhardt; Sister Bessie Armstrong, Rose Caldwell; Matilda Armstrong, Betty Jo Horn; Mary Todd, Mary Lou Robertson; Elizabeth Todd Edwards, Ruth Sword; Frances Todd, Meredith Lainhart; Potter Eldred, Charles Smith.

In the spring everyone tends to be gay and frivolous and the Players are no exception for their last play of the year was a light comedy-romance, Love-In-A-Mist, which was presented April 4, 1944. The cast included: Anna Moore Wynne, Vervia Probst; Sydney Rose Wynne, Jeanne Dudley; Kizzy, Betty Hester; Colin, Charles Miles; Diana Wynne, Dolores Psalmonds; Gregory Farnham, Rufus Miller; Count Scipione Varelli, Mario Tabush.

The technical staffs for these productions worked diligently and well in their field of lighting, sets, properties, and other "little things" which contribute so largely to the complete success of a play. Especial mention should be made of Bob Rusk, the business manager, and A. W. Michael, the stage manager, who never failed in the execution of their respective duties.

The theme of the dramatic productions this year, under the very capable direction of Miss Virginia D. Rice, was psychologically planned for a war year with two light comedies and a historical play revolving around the leadership of a country. The contribution of drama to the feeling of the audience is a significant reality in the face of the nervous tension under which, to a certain extent, the populations of the world are living. The Players have been a definite morale-building factor and also have played an important part in the preservation of the spirit of Jewell through their efforts to use new material in the various casts, the only repetitions being of necessity in the male parts, thus helping to unite a student body which might otherwise not have felt itself such an integrated whole with so many absent members.

zation has as its purpose the furthering of interest in dramatic activity and encouragement of participation in it. Its members pledge themselves to service in the world of drama, perhaps as an avocation in post-college days. The colors are moonlight blue and amber.

Beta Chi Zeta

Beta Chi Zeta, the honorary biology fraternity for men, was founded in 1927. Since that time it has followed its purpose, "the promotion of interest in biology and stimulation of biological research." At its regular meetings twice a month various subjects in the biology field have been discussed. The organization is a member of the Missouri Academy of Science and has, through the efforts of its members, accomplished some outstanding work this year.

Jack Newport, one of the members, was called into the medical branch of the Navy immediately after Christmas and is continuing his research in the field while serving his country.

The requirements for membership are a "B" average in more than three terms of biology and an active interest in further study of the subject. Under the leadership of its sponsor, Dr. Gier, the club has made for itself on the campus a notable place, while its members are preparing themselves to take an outstanding place in the world of biological research beyond college.

Calvary Club

The members of the Calvary Baptist Church in Kansas City who were enrolled in Jewell in January, 1943, decided to form a club to encourage high school seniors in their church and those without church affiliation to come to Jewell. This year, in their service to the college, the members have entertained some of these seniors at the spring production of the Players and at the senior class play. Their motto is Verbum Sapienti Satis Est, A word to the wise is sufficient.

Seated: Calvert, Blair, F. Duncan, Casebolt. Standing: Powell, K. Duncan, Whiteaker.

Home State Clubs

Because many of the students at William Jewell have left homes too distant to be reached on a weekend, some even so far away as to be either physically or financially unattainable during the Christmas vacation, the Home State Clubs have been formed. They are a tie among the students from the various sections of our country, among students of common friends, common environments. The homesickness of a new student can be more quickly overcome by meeting and talking with a fellow-Californian or a fellow-Bostonian than by any means the other students may employ.

With the somewhat small student body this year, the state clubs have also decreased noticeably and the Northern and Eastern States have combined their clubs in order to continue the purposes of both organizations until the absent members return to the Hill again. All the clubs endeavor to interest students from their respective territories in coming to William Jewell and try to make them feel at home once they have arrived on the campus.

So, in these organizations the students find memories of home, of mountains or plains, farming country or tall city buildings, whatever characteristics of their home town and state are dearest to them. And, they serve their college in their efforts to bring new students to her campus from the localities in which they live, for the best advertisements Jewell has are her students.

The members of Jewell's faculty who have come to the campus from states outside Missouri, also count themselves as members of the home state clubs, forming one more link between the faculty and student body of the college.

During the years the fellowship of the groups has been aided and abetted by frequent social gatherings, dinners in the winter and picnics in the spring. Fulfilling their two-fold purpose with enthusiasm and diligence, these groups have made for themselves and their individual members a place on the campus of memory as well as on the campus of the present.

Southern States

In the Southern States' Club five different states are represented by the eight members. These members have as their purpose in the organization the enlistment of students from the southern states of the country. The states and their representatives are: Alabama, Betty Hester and Dr. A. J. Moon; Georgia, Dr. J. B. Sullivan; Kentucky, Margaret Burton and James Graham; North Carolina, Dr. H. I. Hester; Tennessee, Prof. L. O. Jones and Dolores Psalmonds, since last fall of California.

Colorado State

Colorado has sent to Jewell an outstanding group of students this year as she has done for many years in the past. These students coming from different sections of the western states have a common goal which is to encourage the young people in their home towns to choose as their college, the Campus of Achievement at William Jewell. As true sons and daughters of Jewell they render this service, as do other home state clubs, to serve their alma mater.

The Co-op

Here in the Co-op the students gather between classes for cokes, candy and general relaxation; here friends meet for fellowship. The book store began operation in 1917 under the management of Henri Godfriaux who is now a member of the newly formed Board of Control for the Co-op. At a vote of the student body it was decided to invest the profits from the establishment in permanent improvements for the campus. Since that time new walks, shrubs and other landscaping, the greenhouse building, and improvements on the track have been financed by the income from the Co-op; none of the upkeep comes from this fund.

For the first half of this year David Beebe was the manager of the Co-op and then it was taken over by A. C. Queen. Clerks have been Mary Beebe, Mario Tabush, Gladys Queen, Mildred Queen.

William Jewell Press

The William Jewell Press was founded in 1914 and has, since that time, served the college and community under various managers. At present Mr. John Nowell is in charge and has completed a very successful year in the face of greater odds than have perhaps ever been met before. The working staff has not been so large this year because of the decrease in enrollment, paper stock and type have been difficult to obtain, but through it all Mr. Nowell has not lost his optimism. He has been dependable and efficient in his work for the student publications and other college printed material, for which he deserves much credit. The editors of the college publications have found him a willing advisor without whom the book and paper could not have come out against the problems facing them.

Many varied activities go on in the Press. There is a well-equipped dark room where Mr. Nowell and John Carroll develop the pictures for the publications and for individuals, also. In the large work room on Mississippi Avenue are the presses, and the linotype at which Gladys Van De Vooren presided part of the year, as well as the Addressograph at which Mary Moon spent many long hours. Mr. Stephens helped with the presses and also ran the linotype. Mary Lou Robertson and Mary Moon were the principal workers in charge of mailing out the papers printed at the Press: the Student, Church and College, and the Bulletin. In the front office Eleanor Neth greets the customers and keeps the books for the establishment. The cooperation and hard work of the entire staff under Mr. Nowell have made a successful year possible, not only for the Press itself, but also for the publications which depend upon it.

Through the thirty years of its service to the college the Press has helped many students in a financial way so that they might finish their college course. In its aid to these students and in its long hours of work for the student publications, the Press has been an outstanding factor in the maintaining of the Jewell spirit. It has become a necessary part of college life for those who are employed there and for those who count themselves among its customers.

Glee Club

It was said by Nietzsche, the German philosopher, that "without music, life would be a mistake." Similarly, those who planned the curriculum of this liberal arts college realized that, without music, William Jewell's course of study would be incomplete. Since the organization of the glee club, the students who have been its members have been those who appreciated music, who sought the training which the glee club affords in group singing, and the acquaintance with finer music which it offers.

During the first part of the year, selections were sung at the Inauguration for Dr. Binns and at the chapel programs for the Naval Flight Preparatory School on Sunday nights, the latter with the hope that either through singing or listening, the boys might find momentary relaxation from their strenuous course of study. At this time the bass and tenor sections were composed nearly entirely of cadets.

It was not until the latter part of the year that the glee club became a regular part of the chapel programs. When this decision was made, enough boys were recruited from the student body on the hill to support the tenor and bass sections.

Twice during the year a group of members from the choir was chosen by Dr. Grosch to sing on William Jewell programs which were being given over WDAF in Kansas City. The first occasion was at the very first of school, the second during Inauguration Week. Two of the anthems most likely to be remembered are Sanctus by Gounod sung at the Inauguration ceremony and Fred Waring's arrangement of Onward, Christian Soldiers presented in chapel during spring term.

The leader of the glee club, Dr. David Grosch, deserves the highest praise for the splendid appearances which the group made this year in spite of the continual change in the men's sections. His direction is experienced and capable, his education in music has been extensive, received from some of the greatest teachers in the present music world.

Pan-Hellenic Council

The Pan-Hellenic Council, made up of the president and two members from each sorority, was founded in 1925 as the mediating link between the two groups. The rules for all matters concerning both sororities are kept by this council from year to year and new problems which arise are discussed and amicably settled in its meetings.

The president of the Council, which alternates between the two sororities, was for this year Penny Paynter, president of Beta Sigma Omicron.

Interfraternity Council

In keeping with Jewell's age-old tradition of order and harmony, two men from each fraternity on the hill unite annually to form the Interfraternity Council, which functions as a medium of democratic discussion and agreement in policies regulating fraternity activities.

One special effort of the Interfraternity Council is the encouragement of participation in intramural sports and the creation of a better atmosphere of sportsmanship among the groups taking part.

Sigma

Beta Sigma Omicron, founded at the University of Missouri in 1888, installed Alpha Psi chapter at William Jewell in 1931, replacing the local organization known as Iota Pi. The flowers of the sorority are the Richmond and Killarney roses representing the colors which are ruby and pink.

Highlights of the year: pledge dance with autumn theme . . . winter formal — silhouetted ice skaters and miniature snow scene . . . Star dust, purple shadows and moonlight for spring . . . Mothers' Day Tea, May 7 . . . numerous radio parties . . . four diamonds and a KA shield captured by Betas . . . Tatler Revue Queen and attendant . . . Homecoming Queen . . . one new member in Panaegis . . . two members in Who's Who . . .

Alpha Psi was honored during the year to have Miss Georgia Bessie Bowman, W.J.C. '34, national president, and Mrs. Juelda Burnaugh, executive secretary, visit and inspect the chapter. It was also fortunate for Alpha Psi that Mrs. P. Caspar Harvey, editor of The Urn, was able to be with the members so often, uniting Alpha Psi with the other chapters of Beta Sigma Omicron in their activities. This year Mrs. Chester Miles has been so gracious as to allow the chapter to use part of her home for a chapter room since the Navy is in Melrose.

Kappa

Alpha

The Kappa Alpha Order of southern gentlemen was organized in 1865 at Washington and Lee University and was brought to William Jewell in 1887 to become the chapter with the distinction of being the most northern of all Kappa Alpha chapters in the nation. Having lived in no less than eleven different houses in Liberty, the Kappa Alpha chapter in 1930 built the first fraternity house constructed especially for that use, where the members lived until the girls moved from Melrose in March of 1943, to occupy the fraternity houses while the Navy school is active on the campus.

Despite the draft, Alpha Delta of Kappa Alpha completed another year of high honors on the campus. The "formidable five" won the Intramural Basketball championship with five consecutive wins . . . Duncan Dallam, Tommy Brandom and Lawrence Smith starred, with Jim Stertz steadying the team at center . . . in the social whirl: KA booth at the Sadie Hawkins' party took first place with "Mammy Yokum" Hall and "Pappy Yokum" Gill stealing the show . . . at the annual Tatler Revue second place went to Kappa Alpha for their skit . . . the pledge dance was a specialty with a "big red rose" presented to each girl . . . KA was represented by two members in Who's Who . . . fall editor of the Student . . . a member in '43-'44 Aeons . . . a member holding highest Pi Kappa Delta award.

KA began the school year with four actives and fourteen pledges; now seven of them are on the sea, on the land, or in the air for Uncle Sam. Of those remaining, four will soon answer the call to the colors. But to paraphrase slightly Farragut's immortal words, Kappa Alpha says, "In spite of the draft, full speed ahead."

During the year Mrs. Vanlandingham, Mother Van at the Southern Mansion, has served capably as chaperon at all the social affairs of K A.

Lambda  Alpha Chi

Lambda Chi Alpha was founded at Boston University in 1900 and has at the present 100 chapters, of which Epsilon Mu Zeta is the last, installed at William Jewell in the spring of 1942 to replace the local organization, Zeta Chi. Through its second year on William Jewell's campus, Epsilon Mu Zeta has endeavored to keep up the traditions and standards of the order despite the difficulties placed in its way by the war.

Epsilon Mu Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha has added several honors this year to those already possessed by the fraternity. In the annual Homecoming Day parade Lambda Chi's float portraying For Whom the Bell Tolls placed first. Then in March, Joe Morrison, a well-known radio, stage, and screen star, was a guest on the campus and was initiated into the fraternity as an honorary member through the Kansas City Alumni Association. May 19th marked another highlight of the year when Colonel Roy H. Parker, who was a charter member of Zeta Chi, became a brother in Lambda Chi Alpha. Because Col. Parker had been serving overseas, this was the first opportunity which he had had to be initiated into the national fraternity.

Epsilon Mu Zeta now occupies the same house which was the home of its predecessor, the local Zeta Chi, from 1920 until 1942. Because of the decreased number of fraternity members in all the fraternal orders on the Hill, the Lambda Chi Alpha House has been the home of most of the members of Kappa Alpha and also some independent men this year.

Lambda Chi was represented on the Hill by two student assistants to the faculty, one member in Who's Who, and the Student Body President for 1943-44. The members were also active in other honorary organizations as well as in their individual classes. So, the men of the purple, green, and gold have held high their fraternity's ideals and traditions through another year of world unrest and have maintained their order for the members who will return to it, in flesh or in spirit, from fields of battle.

Oldest fraternity on Jewell's campus, Zeta Phi of Phi Gamma Delta has ended another banner year despite the loss of many brothers to the armed service of their country. All the traditions about which the fraternity has been built were faithfully observed during a year of many social activities . . . a hay-ride in the fall . . . frequent radio parties throughout the year . . . cooperation in the inter-fraternity winter formal . . . the annual Pig Dinner for the alumni in February . . . a spring informal party at the Library . . . Fiji Day, May 7 . . . Mothers' Day Tea, May 12.

Zeta Phi of Phi Gamma Delta dates back to 1886, but prior to that time a fraternity known as Zeta Phi, which might have become national, was active on three Missouri campuses, William Jewell, Missouri University, and Washington University. The Jewell chapter withdrew in 1886 to become Zeta Phi of Phi Gamma Delta, the first national fraternity in Liberty. The founding of the national brotherhood was in Cannonsburg, Penn., at Jefferson College in the year 1848.

Zeta Phi began this year with six boys and in the spring counted fourteen in its membership, having given five to the armed service of their country and having lost two who left school for other reasons. During the year several men of the royal purple, now in the uniform of the United States, returned to the campus and were welcomed by the chapter and the college.

Honors to Zeta Phi this year have included several class officers as well as officers and members in almost all the honorary organizations on the Hill; Jerry Jones represented the chapter in Who's Who and as business manager of the Student. Zeta Phi also won first prize with its serious skit on the youth of America in the 1944 Tatler Revue. Close second place in the Intramural Basketball tournament was won by the Fiji team with four out of five wins.

A new building has been the home of the Fiji men this year, with Mother Short presiding over it as she had over the one on Mississippi Avenue, which the fraternity had occupied since 1913, now known as Harmony House and a dormitory for girls.

Sigma

Nu

Founded in 1869 at Virginia Military Institute, Sigma Nu installed Beta Xi chapter at William Jewell in January of 1894. After five years of location in the downtown district of Liberty, the chapter moved to the North Water location in 1899 where the members made their home, with the exception of eight years, until the exodus of the girls from Melrose in 1943 to the fraternity houses. This year, the headquarters for the Sigma Nu men has been the home of the Commander, Bill Nelson on Miller Avenue.

The war and subsequent enlistment of America's young men made a deeper impression on Sigma Nu than on any other fraternity at William Jewell. At the first of the year one member returned to carry on for the chapter of forty-five, active on the campus in 1942-43 . . . rush week, however, saw six Sigma Nu pledges who gave promise of a somewhat larger chapter soon. The social round of the year began with a radio party at the USO to which the members of the various fraternities were invited . . . also in the fall term, came the annual hayride which, because of the rainy weather, was converted at the last minute into another radio party . . . only members of the fraternity were present at the stag banquet held especially for them at the Hotel Muchlebach in Kansas City . . . Sigma Nu entered wholeheartedly into preparations for the Interfrat dance in February . . . Prof. P. Caspar Harvey, long a close friend of Beta Xi, was pledged to Sigma Nu . . . the Fiftieth Anniversary of the local chapter was celebrated with another banquet at the Muchlebach at which Prof. Harvey was initiated as an active member . . . an alumni reunion climaxed the evening.

Despite the small chapter in 1944, the fiftieth year of Sigma Nu's activity on Jewell's campus, Beta Xi has retained its place on the Hill, has been represented in the Homecoming, Tatler Revue, rush week; has held class offices, and worked on interfraternity affairs. As a trust for the brothers of Sigma Nu now serving their country, the Beta Xi chapter at William Jewell has not ceased to maintain its identity among the Greek letter organizations, has endeavored to preserve its history and traditions against the glorious day of their return. Members of Beta Xi have met the challenge of great odds and have conquered by their loyalty and devotion to their fraternity, working in the name of their absent brothers.

TNT was founded at William Jewell in 1922 and since that time the girls of the purple and lavender have been an outstanding part of the campus.

Social events of TNT lost no enthusiasm because of war curtailments . . . first, the pledge dance with harvest decorations . . . winter formal around a Valentine theme of hearts and cupids . . . tea honoring retiring sponsor, Mrs. J. I've told students, too, during war-time, to conserve in their use of electricity, but not to conserve in the protection of eyesight that is so precious. Eyesight, like war production, safety and transportation, must be protected, too. These things are also essential in our war effort. THE WILLIAM JEWELL P R E S S was founded originally as a bindery in the basement of the Library. It has grown until it offers a printing service fully as complete and modern as any outside Greater Kansas City in this area. It furnishes William Jewell College and its Student Body a convenient and specialized service, especially adapted to their requirements. Type and layouts are bought and made up especially for a progressive student body and college. Services are continually added to maintain the high standards of the PRESS. Its progress is being planned so that as William Jewell becomes a name more and more renowned, so will its publications be better known for their attractiveness and mechanical excellence. As new ideas and methods are made available the PRESS will adopt as many of these as are practical to furnish a completely modern and efficient service. The PRESS has maintained a foremost position in the graphic arts in the past; and has an eye for a top rating in the future of the printing industry.

"The Campus of Achievement"

WILLIAM JEWELL COLLEGE

In the heart of America, 14 miles from Kansas City

Training for Achievement

The accepted yardstick to measure the achievement of college graduates is listing in "Who's Who in America." Among all the Baptist colleges in America, not one has a higher percentage of its graduates thus listed than William Jewell. In fact, this percentage is so high for William Jewell that it is known as "The Campus of Achievement." This tradition and this spirit of achievement assure students today the background and training which will develop them for the fullest use of their capacities.

Standards High

William Jewell maintains the highest standards with its A.B. degree universally accepted under the approval of the Association of American Universities.

Costs Low

The cost of attending William Jewell is one of the lowest in America.
